Clarks Originals are of the moment. Always have been. Always will be. From iconic styles that have never gone out of fashion to designs that are right for the times. Classics are revived and replicated, legends reinterpreted. Stunning new looks are inspired as much by our past as by the here and now. And superb materials from the four corners of the globe are fused with the signature Originals crepe sole. For men and for women, there is nothing quite like Clarks Originals. Never has been. Never will be.

Original material

The crepe sole has been an essential feature of Originals since the very first Desert Boot was launched in 1950. One of nature's great shock absorbers and water-repellents, crepe's made from latex tapped from the para rubber tree. Mixed, mashed and dried, it's rolled into sheets before being trimmed to size, with any off-cuts recycled. It's entirely natural and it's sustainable. So it's good for the planet as well as your feet (it also looks pretty cool). Another constant in the Originals story is our suede. Now, as ever, it's supplied by Charles F. Stead, a north of England tannery with roots going all the way back to 1893.

As well as the suede, other materials chosen with care include vintage leathers from America and hand-woven Harris Tweed from Scotland. With wear and over time, they all play their part in helping to make each pair of Originals as individual as the individual who wears them.
