

UNIVERSITY OF LIMERICK
OLLSCOIL LUIMNIGH

SCHOOL OF HISTORY AND GEOGRAPHY
SCOIL NA STAIRE AGUS NA TÍREOLAÍOCHTA

HISTORY

POSTGRADUATE HANDBOOK 2024-5

This booklet applies to the academic year 2024-5.
It should be read in conjunction with any additional information supplied by History faculty and with all relevant information and regulations issued by the University and by the Faculty of Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences.

Please refer to:

University Handbook of Academic Regulations and the University Student Handbook –
<https://www.ul.ie/academic-registry/current-students/policies-procedures-handbooks-0>

Every effort has been made to ensure that the contents are accurate but no responsibility can be taken for errors or omissions. It is the responsibility of each student to keep informed of the particular requirements of each module.

No guarantee is given that modules or regulations may not be altered, cancelled or otherwise amended at any time. The booklet confers no rights on any student registered for the session 2024-5.

© School of History and Geography, University of Limerick

Front: 'Portrait of a gentleman', thought to be Olaudah Equiano, attributed to Joseph Ducreux (French, 1735–1802) (The Morgan Library and Museum, New York).

Back: Notice from the Corporation of Waterford to those seeking freedom of the city, 1828 (Adams Auction House, Dublin, '800 Years of Irish History' sale, 2012).

CONTENTS

Introduction.....	1
School of History and Geography.....	2
Faculty and Staff.....	2
Visiting Faculty	5
Adjunct Professors of History.....	5
Associate Fellows	6
Retired Staff.....	6
Research Students.....	7
Funded Research	8
Academic Calendar 2024-5.....	9
Taught Postgraduate Programmes	10
M.A. History.....	10
M.A. Local History.....	11
M.A. History of Family.....	12
M.A. History of Family (Online).....	13
M.A. Public History and Cultural Heritage	14
M.A. Irish and Global Conflict History	16
Research Programmes	17
Doctor of philosophy (Ph.D.)	17
Module codes, syllabi and lecturers.....	19
Centre for Early Modern Studies, Limerick.....	23
University of Limerick and Mary Immaculate College History Research Seminar Series.....	24
Student-supervisor relations	25
Attendance and field visits.....	25
Faculty professional Activities	25
Student Representation and Views.....	26
History Society	27
History Studies	27
Irish History Students' Association.....	27
Resources	28
Coursework assessment, marks and standards	30
Rubric for presenting coursework and dissertation.....	33
Text Style for Coursework and Dissertation.....	35
Footnote referencing conventions.....	37
Dissertation retention and availability.....	47
Guidelines for structuring the M.A. dissertation.....	48
Appendices.....	49

INTRODUCTION

The School of History and Geography is very pleased to welcome you to postgraduate study at the University of Limerick. The study of history at this level is both challenging and demanding but it is also an invigorating and enjoyable experience. It seeks to build on your proven competence and skills and in the time ahead you will develop those skills and acquire new ones as well. The School is well positioned to support you in your work: faculty members, each in their respective specialisms, are exceptionally well qualified to provide you with supportive and informed supervision. Similarly, the School administrator will assist and support you in any way possible. You should feel free to avail of each and every opportunity that the school offers for your enrichment.

Inevitably, a higher degree in history will add to the career opportunities now open to you but should you so wish, it will provide you with a very firm basis for more independent research work to postdoctoral level and beyond.

We look forward to your wholehearted participation in all the activities of the School – social as well as educational – and wish you all the best for your time here.

SCHOOL OF HISTORY AND GEOGRAPHY

Faculty and Staff

HEAD OF SCHOOL

David Fleming, B.A. (Limerick), M.St. (Oxon), D.Phil. (Oxon)

Associate Professor A

Course Director, M.A. Local History

Email: david.fleming@ul.ie

Room C1075; Ext 3795

Research interests: Early modern Ireland; history of localities; political, social and cultural history of eighteenth-century Ireland.

SENIOR ADMINISTRATOR

Emma T Foley

Tel: 353-61-202280

Email: emma.t.foley@ul.ie or history@ul.ie

Room: C1076

Leanne Calvert, B.A. (Q.U.B.), M.A. (Q.U.B.), Ph.D. (Q.U.B.), PG Cert (Herts)

Assistant Professor

Course Director, M.A. History of Family

Email: Leanne.Calvert@ul.ie

Room: C1-073

Research interests: History of the family, gender and sexuality, Presbyterian families in Ireland and North America across the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries.

Robert Collins, B.A. (U.L.), Ph.D. (U.L.)

Teaching Assistant

Email: Robert.collins@ul.ie

Room: C1078

Research interests: Modern Irish, American and European history; The study of Irish-United States relations and the Irish diaspora; Peace and conflict studies.

Aaron Donaghy, B.A. (N.U.I.), M.A. (N.U.I.), Ph.D. (N.U.I.), FRHistS

Assistant Professor B
Co-Course Director, M.A. Irish and Global Conflict History

Email: aaron.donaghy@ul.ie

Room C1090; Ext 7897

Research Interests: U.S. foreign relations; twentieth-century international history; the Cold War.

Richard Kirwan, B.A. (T.C.D.), Ph.D. (T.C.D.)

Associate Professor A

Email: richard.kirwan@ul.ie

Room: C1074; Ext 2928

Research interests: Early modern Germany; early modern universities; early modern print culture; the Reformation.

Alistair Malcolm, M.A. (St. Andrews), D.Phil. (Oxon), FRHistS

Associate Professor B

Director, Centre for Early Modern Studies

Email: alistair.malcolm@ul.ie

Room: C1088; Ext 2604

Research interests: Spain in the golden age; diplomatic and court politics; cultural history; politics and artistic patronage.

José Maria Moreno Madrid, B.A. (Complutense), M.A. (Complutense), Ph.D. (Lisbon).

Teaching Assistant

Email: JoseMaria.MorenoMadrid@ul.ie

Room: C1078

Research interests: History of science and technology in the early modern period (16th-18th centuries). Nautical science and the history of navigation, the production and transmission of artisanal knowledge and the interaction between the history of science and the history of emotions in the same period.

Karol Mullaney-Dignam, B.A. (N.U.I.), H.Dip. (N.U.I.), Ph.D. (N.U.I.),
Dip. D.M. (D.M.I.)

Associate Professor B

Course Director M.A. Public History and Cultural Heritage

Email: karol.mullaneydignam@ul.ie

Room C1091; Ext 2199

Research interests: Ireland 1700s-1900s; music histories; historic houses; cultural heritage.

Niamh NicGhabhann-Coleman, B.A. (T.C.D.), Ph.D. (T.C.D.)

Associate Professor A

Course Director, M.A. History

Email: niamh.nicghabhann@ul.ie

Room: C1087; Ext 2798

Research interests: Irish art and architectural histories; ecclesiastical architecture; antiquarianism; aspects of arts/ heritage management and cultural policy.

Ruan O'Donnell, B.A. (N.U.I.), M.A. (N.U.I.), Ph.D. (A.N.U.)

Associate Professor A

Co-Course Director, M.A. Irish and Global Conflict History

Email: ruan.odonnell@ul.ie

Room: C1089; Ext 3148

Research interests: Modern Irish, European and Australian history; the United Irishmen; imperialism; Irish revolutionary movements; commemoration.

Visiting Faculty

Seán Whitney, B.A. (U.L.), M.A. (U.L.), Ph.D. (U.L.)

Email: Sean.M.Whitney@ul.ie

Research interests: Plantations of Ireland; socio-economic, political and cultural history of nineteenth-century Ireland; early twentieth-century Ireland.

Martin Walsh, B.A. (U.L.), Ph.D (U.L.)

UL Oral History Project Officer

Email: Martin.Walsh@ul.ie

Research interests: History of women; twentieth-century Irish history.

Adjunct Professors of History

Former Holders

2013-16: Caitríona Crowe, B.A. (N.U.I.), senior Archivist and head of Special Papers, National Archives of Ireland.

2017-22: Dr Jyoti Atwal, Associate Professor, Centre for Historical Studies, School of Social Sciences, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi, India

Associate Fellows

Dr Patrick Doyle

Research interests:

History of economic democracy and the historical relationship between capitalism and religion.

Professor Pierce Grace

Research interests:

History of medicine, disease and healthcare in Ireland.

Dr Kirsten Mulrennan

Research interests:

Archivistics; medical history, including psychiatric history and sensitive archival records; archival literacy, education and outreach; digital humanities and digital scholarship.

Dr Catriona Paul

Research interests:

American history of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries; human-animal histories as they intersect with histories of race and settler colonialism; social and cultural history of early America and the American West.

Dr Matthew Potter

Research interests:

Urban History; History of local government; history of Limerick; death and cemeteries; social housing; Irish textiles; local history; history of modern Ireland; the Anglo-Irish landed elite 1700-1921.

Retired Staff

Dr John Logan

Research interests:

Poverty in the eighteenth-century city; schooling, language and literacy in the nineteenth century; education policy, Ireland 1920-90.

Professor Anthony McElligott

MRIA, FRHistS, Emeritus Professor of History

Research interests:

Germany in the twentieth century, including urban politics, cultural history; Holocaust in the Eastern Aegean.

Dr Bernadette Whelan

MRIA, Associate Professor Emerita

Research interests:

Irish foreign policy 1900-60; nineteenth- and twentieth-century American-Irish relations; recovery and reconstruction after the Second World War; women in Ireland, 1900-60.

Research Students

Student	Topic	Supervisors
Shareef Ali	'What was the British policy towards the Kurdish National Movement in Iraq 1961-70?	R Mazza/ A Malcolm
Nora Almowanic	'The political career of Captain William Shakespear and his role in the Arabian Peninsula 1909-15'	R Mazza
Rachel Beck	'Illustrating nineteenth-century (Limerick) histories: exploring the public history potential of graphic narratives'	K. Mullaney-Dignam
Lisa Mc Geeney	'The Clare County Nursery, 1922-32'	D Fleming
Anna Maria Hajba	'Women in nineteenth-century architecture: a case study of Caroline, Countess of Dunraven, 1790-1870'	K Mullaney-Dignam /N NicGhabhann-Coleman
Brian Madigan	'The origins of the Good Friday Agreement'	R O'Donnell
Gerald Maher	'Irish republicans and the radicalisation of Irish-American nationalism, 1916-23'	R O'Donnell
Rebecca O'Regan	'Women, society, and the country house in Ireland's mid-West, 1800-1850'	K Mullaney-Dignam
Naomi Rice	'Republican murals in Derry and Belfast, 1981-2024'	R O'Donnell
Ciara Sheehan	'Student deviance in the Holy Roman Empire: the shifting attitudes and responses to Deposition and Pennalismus in early modern German universities'	R Kirwan

Funded Research

Irish Research Council Laureate Award, 2022-6

Malcontents: Order and Disorder in the Early Modern World of Learning

This project investigates the history of intellectual and social deviance in the early modern world of learning with a focus on the universities of the Holy Roman Empire and the Low Countries.

Project Team

Principal Investigator	Dr Richard Kirwan
Post-doctoral Fellow:	Dr Wouter Kreuze
PhD Scholar:	Ciara Sheehan

Fulbright Ireland-USA Awards

Ireland-United States Commission for Educational Exchange

Fulbright Awards are grants for Irish citizens to study at the postgraduate level, research, and/or teach in the United States of America and for Americans to do the same in Ireland.

UL History Awardees:

D Fleming	Fulbright Scholar in Residence University of Montana	2015-16
R O'Donnell	Scholar in Residence University of Montana	2017-18
C Breathnach	Fulbright Irish Scholar New York University	2022-3

ACADEMIC CALENDAR 2024-5

9 September 2024	Start of Autumn Semester lectures
29 November 2024	End of Autumn Semester lectures
27 January 2025	Start of Spring Semester lectures
25 April 2025	End of Spring Semester lectures
14 April 2025	Student Easter Break
31 August 2025	Latest date for dissertation submission
27 November 2025	Winter Examination Board
20-4 January 2025	Winter Conferring Ceremonies

Supervision period

Academic supervisors are not normally available for particular periods of the summer owing to annual leave. Please ensure that you are aware of these times and avoid contacting supervisors when on leave.

TAUGHT POSTGRADUATE PROGRAMMES

M.A. History

Course Director: Dr Niamh NicGhabhann

External Examiner: Professor John McCafferty, University College Dublin

This one-year programme provides a structured induction to advanced historical research for graduates in history. It is built upon the common assumption that the understanding of history is important in itself; that history is essential for interpreting not only the past, but all aspects of the present; that an understanding of history provides a solid intellectual foundation applicable to disciplines other than its own; and that the study of history is of incalculable benefit for the acquisition of vital skills, including those of research techniques, analysis, rigorous thought, empathy, and independence of mind. The programme (including its research dissertation), provides a valued route to doctoral research, and to careers in education, research, archival and heritage services, to name but a few. Students who participate in the programme will develop their research skills but also deepen their knowledge of substantive and theoretical areas of historical study, guided by the presence of faculty with expertise in the late medieval, early modern and modern histories of local, Irish and European societies.

Students take two core modules and two electives in the Autumn semester. In the Spring semester, students take three core modules and one elective. The dissertation (15,000-21,000 words) will be initiated in the Autumn semester and completed by the end of the Summer period.

Autumn Semester

(all modules are 9 credits unless stated otherwise)

Core modules

HI6131	Concepts and methods
HI6211	Historical research in practice I	(3 credits)

Choose two electives from the following:

HI6191	Graduate seminar in Irish cultural history
HI6121	Art and power in the age of the Tudors and Stuarts
HI6061	Linking families to communities

Spring Semester

Core modules

HI6002	History research seminar
HI6312	Historical research in practice II (3 credits)
HI6222	Directed reading in history

Choose one elective from the following:

HI6062	People on the move: studying migration.
HI6792	Public history internship
HI6302	The Long War in Ireland, 1968-98

HI6043 Dissertation (no less than 15,000 words, no more than 21,000) (30 credits)

Optional 3-credit module: MU6071 Beginners' Latin

M.A. Local History

Course Director: Dr David Fleming

External Examiner: Dr Maeve O’Riordan, University College Cork

People living and working in a particular locality in the past provide the focus of this programme. Its aim is to develop a range of research skills to further historical understanding of local and regional societies. Students learn about the range of primary sources available for advanced historical research and identify pertinent questions in order to tease out the complexities of the past. Besides traditional sources, students learn how oral history and folklore can be used effectively to tell the story of people’s lives in their localities. By the end of the programme students will have acquired all the skills necessary to produce a professional piece of local history to publication standard.

The programme was established in 1996 and is taught by faculty from the Departments of History and Geography, Mary Immaculate College – where some of the modules are delivered – and faculty from the School of History and Geography, and Culture and Communication at the University of Limerick. It is a part-time programme taken over two academic years. During the first year students take modules on one evening weekly. In the second year students attend a research seminar and complete a dissertation of approximately 15,000-21,000 words. Research topics will be identified during the programme and the results of on-going research will be reviewed and developed in research seminars with the support of a faculty supervisor.

Autumn Semester - first year

(all modules are 9 credits unless stated otherwise)

HI5101	Foundation course: scope, sources and methods of local history
GA5104	The excluded voice? Methods and cases in oral history and béaloides
HI5111	Computing, databases and quantitative research methods
HI5231	People, time and space: local history research seminar I (3 credits)

Spring Semester - first year

GY5103	Reading the landscape: sources and methods in historical research
HI5112	Local studies, archaeology and material culture
HI5102	Sources and cases in modern Irish history
HI5232	People, time and space: local history research seminar ii (3 credits)

Second year

HI5221	Dissertation (15 credits)
HI5222	Dissertation (no less than 15,000 words, no more than 21,000) (15 credits)

M.A. History of Family

Course Director: Dr Leanne Calvert

External Examiner: Dr Andrew Sneddon, University of Ulster

The aims of the programme are to provide students with an opportunity to obtain formal training in the methodologies and concepts in the history of family and to support each student's personal quest for intellectual autonomy. On completion a successful participant will have acquired knowledge of a range of key issues in the history of political, social and economic development particularly as it might be applied to history of family in community, local, regional, national and transnational contexts; developed advanced skills in identifying, locating, assessing and interpreting appropriate primary and secondary sources; acquired the skills necessary as a foundation to conduct historical research at doctoral and post-doctoral level; and developed the skills necessary to present the results of historical research to publication standard.

The M.A. in the History of the Family is a one year, full-time or two-year part-time postgraduate degree programme.

Full-time Programme

Autumn Semester

(all modules are 9 credits unless stated otherwise)

Core Modules

HI6041	Introduction to the history of the family
HI6101	MA research methodology (3 credits)

Electives Choose two electives:

HI6061	Linking families to communities
HI6191	Graduate seminar in Irish cultural history
HI6121	Art and power in the age of the Tudors and Stuarts

Spring Semester

Core Modules

HI6002	History research seminar
HI6082	Dissertation 1
HI6122	Dissertation writing in history of family (3 credits)

Choose one elective from the following (NB: all elective offerings are subject to change)

HI6062	People on the move: studying migration.
HI6192	Irish diaspora: a social and cultural history

Summer Semester

HI6003	Dissertation 2 (no less than 15,000 words, no more than 21,000) (30 credits)
--------	--

Part-time Programme

As above but HI6003 Dissertation 2 is completed in year two.

M.A. History of Family (Online)

Course Director: Dr Leanne Calvert

Lectures will be delivered via online conferencing and podcast, while online support and supervision will be given via email. Lectures will be supported with online tutorials, e-tivities and dedicated online resources.

Full-time Programme

Autumn Semester

(all modules are 9 credits unless stated otherwise)

Core modules

- HI6301 Introduction to the history of the family
- HI6321 MA research methodology (3 credits)

Students will take the following online electives:

- HI6351 Linking families to communities
- HI6191 Graduate seminar in Irish cultural history

Spring Semester

(all modules are 9 credits unless stated otherwise)

Core modules

- HI6322 History research seminar
- HI6342 Dissertation 1
- HI6332 Dissertation writing in history of family (3 credits)

Choose one elective from the following: (NB: all elective offerings are subject to change)

- HI6352 People on the move: studying migration.
- HI6192 Irish diaspora: a social and cultural history

Summer Semester

- HI6341 Dissertation 2 (no less than 15,000 words, no more than 21,000) (30 credits)

Part-time Programme

As above but HI6341 Dissertation 2 is completed in year two.

M.A. Public History and Cultural Heritage

Course Director: Dr Karol Mullaney-Dignam

External Examiner: Prof Jerome De Groot, University of Manchester

The Public History and Cultural Heritage MA programme is offered as a one-year full-time or two-year part-time online/blended postgraduate degree. The aim is to provide a structured academic approach to the study and practice of history in public settings. The programme equips students with knowledge and transferrable skills needed to understand and practice history in the public domain, in 'real world' settings outside of academia. It combines conceptual, methodological and practice-based modules, engaging with contemporary issues in public history and cultural heritage. The programme also includes training on academic, practical, and ethical aspects of historical research and presentation.

While graduates of this MA are well placed to pursue a multiplicity of career pathways, the programme will prove to be of particular value to those who wish to pursue a career in public history and cultural heritage, in the GLAM (Galleries, Libraries, Archives, Museums) sector, or as freelance historians working on local community history and heritage projects. It is also valued by practitioners of public history who seek theoretical and methodological upskilling, and those wishing to pursue doctoral research in this area.

FULL-TIME PROGRAMME (one year)

Autumn Semester

(all modules are 9 credits unless stated otherwise)

Four modules

HI6201	Introduction to public history: theory & practice
HI6171	Digital public history: culture and communication
HI6191	Graduate seminar in Irish cultural history
HI6211	Historical research in practice 1 (3 credits)

Spring Semester

Four modules

HI6792	Public history internship [This module may be taken by current public history practitioners as a work-based reflective practice]
HI6222	Directed reading in history
HI6002	MA History research seminar
HI6312	Historical research in practice 2 (3 credits)

Summer Semester

HI6033	Dissertation (15,000-20,000 words) (30 credits) [or exit for the Graduate Diploma in Public History and Cultural Heritage (60 credits)]
--------	---

Part-time Programme (two years)

(all modules are 9 credits unless stated otherwise)

Autumn Semester Year 1

(all modules are 9 credits unless stated otherwise)

Two modules

HI6201 Introduction to public history: theory and practice
HI6171 Digital public history: culture and communication

Spring Semester Year 1

Two modules

HI6792 Public history internship
[This module may be taken by current public history practitioners as a work-based reflective practice]
HI6222 Directed reading in history

Autumn Semester Year 2

Two modules

HI6191 Graduate seminar in Irish cultural history
HI6211 Historical Research in Practice 1 (3 credits)

Spring Semester Year 2

Two modules

HI6002 MA History research seminar
HI6312 Historical Research in Practice 2 (3 credits)

Summer Semester Year 2

HI6033 Dissertation (15,000-20,000 words) (30 credits)
[or exit for the Graduate Diploma in Public History and Cultural Heritage (60 credits)]

Both the one year full-time and two year part-time MA provide an exit award of Graduate Diploma in Public History and Cultural Heritage for students who meet the academic requirements of the taught programme (60 ECTS) and choose not proceed to the dissertation (30 ECTS).

M.A. Irish and Global Conflict History

Course Directors: Dr Aaron Donaghy and Dr Ruan O'Donnell

External Examiner: Dr David Fitzgerald, University College Cork

This one-year MA programme explores Irish and international conflict during the twentieth century—the most violent period in recorded history. Wars have often changed the course of human history, opening up pathways into the future and closing down others. Examining the history of conflict and its impact on society enables us to better understand the world we live in. Part of the programme will also explore the study of conflict resolution, examining the history of diplomacy and negotiation between states. Students will learn about the different ways that historians have approached the study of war and peace, the various sources at their disposal, and the theoretical issues arising within the field. Topics covered include the Cold War, the two World Wars, and the Northern Ireland “Troubles”—the longest and most serious insurgency in post-1945 Western Europe.

During the course of the programme, students develop advanced skills in research, analysis, presentation, and debate, which will stand to them post-graduation. They will learn the scholarly craft and research a topic of their own choice, working with original archival material. This programme therefore serves as an ideal route to doctoral research and a pathway to exciting careers in academia, education, foreign affairs, and the archival and library sectors, among others.

FULL-TIME PROGRAMME (one year)

Autumn Semester

(All modules are 9 credits unless stated otherwise)

Four modules

HI6793	The Global Cold War
HI6131	Concepts and methods
HI6794	Exploring Legacies of Conflict
HI6211	Historical research in practice I (3 credits)

Spring Semester

Four modules

HI6002	MA History Research Seminar
HI6302	The “Long War” in Ireland, 1968-98
HI6222	Directed reading in history
HI6312	Historical research in practice II (3 credits)

Summer Semester

HI6795	Dissertation (circa 15,000 - 20,000 words) (30 credits) [or exit for the Graduate Diploma in Irish and Global Conflict History (60 credits)]
--------	---

RESEARCH PROGRAMMES

Doctor of philosophy (Ph.D.)

The degree of Doctor of Philosophy can be pursued within the school under the supervision of faculty and can also be taken as part of a structured doctoral programme. Besides a supervisor, all Ph.D. candidates will have the benefit of a panel of two other historians who will annually discuss progress towards research goals and dissertation completion.

PhD and MA (research) Progression Panels

As part of the Schools commitment to supporting its research students, a panel will be convened annually to discuss progress. All students are listed for progression, except where a viva voce examination date has been arranged and set by the Graduate School. It is intended that members of progression panels will remain unchanged for the duration of a student's period of research. Progression panels are usually convened in Week 10 of the autumn semester. The following report is required to be submitted prior to the panel:

Progression Review Panel

In accordance with University regulations, the School will review the progress of all research students (Masters and PhD) to ensure that they are progressing at an adequate rate.

The composition of the Progression Review Panel is the Head of School or nominee, who will act as the chairperson, together with the supervisor(s) and at least one independent person nominated by the Head of School and meeting the criteria of the supervisor.

Research students will be informed individually of the date and time of their panel. Students are required to submit a report (which should be sent by email to the panel at least five days before the review) and make a short presentation.

The report should contain the following information:

- Name
- Start date
- Proposed end date
- Supervisor(s)
- Title
- Research question
- Chapter titles and proposed or actual word counts
- Proposed timetable for completing research and writing
- Work completed since last panel (1,000 words)

This section should be as specific as possible. It should also outline where ethics approval has been sought or granted (if required for your research), as well as any other University requirements relating to the student's research. Students in their first year of research should outline their work to date and planned future work.

Once the panel has consulted on the student's progress, the following decisions are available to the Panel:

G: Student progresses to next year

E: Extension of research period

S: Student due to submit or viva date set.

NG: Student is to complete Research confirmation.

Blank: Student does not submit or is not reviewed – Academic Council Grading meeting awards an NG

The Chair will enter the decision on each student's PGR9 form and return to Graduate and Professional Studies. In cases where the student is given an NG, the Chair will make arrangements for a Research Confirmation Panel within eight weeks of the Academic Council grading meeting. The Research Confirmation Panel will enter one of the following decisions: G – Continue on research programme; W – Withdraw from programme; or RM – Revert to Masters (transfer from PhD to Masters Registration).

A student may appeal the decision of the Research Confirmation Panel, in which case an appeals panel will be formed within eight weeks of the Research Confirmation Panel decision. For more information please consult the Handbook of Academic Regulations and Procedures.

MODULE CODES, SYLLABI AND LECTURERS

HI5101 Foundation course: scope, sources and methods of local history

People, time and space; approaches to local history; local history sources: assessment, classification, survival and access; principles guiding the direction of original research, evaluating sources, strengths and weaknesses of sources; methodology: writing and interpreting, description, narrative, analysis.

Dr David Fleming

HI5102 Sources and cases in modern Irish history

The identification and use of sources for the nineteenth and twentieth centuries in local and regional archives; the research of themes, such as the tithe war, the community of landed estates, famine, popular politicisation, trade unionism, housing developments, sports history and constituency organisation.

Department of History, Mary Immaculate College

HI5111 Computing and data bases in local history research

Key categories and collections of statistical data; the use of the computer in processing and analysing historical data; introduction to historical data retrieval and analysis; practical work with computer readable data generated in historical and local studies; an introduction to quantitative methods and their application in specific case studies to historical research.

Dr David Fleming

HI5112 Local studies, material culture and historical archaeology

The study of material culture through artefacts, architecture and related visual sources: the scope and limitations of archaeology; the relationship between archaeological and historical investigations of the past especially in the context of local studies; historical archaeology, industrial archaeology; urban archaeology.

Department of History, Mary Immaculate College

HI6131 Concepts and methods

Introduction: What's in a name? history and history of family; lineages of history; evidence and theories; life cycles and history; counting: quantitative approaches; gendered histories: herstory; interiority: history and emotion; visual histories; historical memory/memory as history; oral histories/family histories; anthropology, history and family; techniques – electronic research skills, archives/bibliographies; choosing a dissertation topic; workshop: reflections of what we have learned.

Dr Aaron Donaghy

HI6211 and HI6312 Historical research in practice I and II

These modules introduce students to historical research as practiced by professional historians. By auditing, participating in and reflecting on the Limerick History Research Seminar, and, where relevant, the Research Seminar of the Centre for Early Modern Studies, students will gain insight into the practical considerations, research techniques, historiographical concerns, and analytical approaches that inform the research projects of the professional historians invited to present research papers. The module exposes students to the challenges of historical research particularly in relation to project design, primary source analysis, and the presentation of research findings.

Dr Aaron Donaghy

HI6002 History research seminar

The 'Research seminar will convene weekly during the Spring Semester under the direction of the Course Directors of the MA History, MA History of Family and MA Public History and Cultural Heritage. It will be attended by each enrolled student and dissertation supervisor. Each member of the programme will be required to present the current results of research on their dissertation topic, with reference to existing scholarship in the area, the formulation of an appropriate research question, the nature of the available sources and the emerging argument. The presentation will be followed by questions and discussion. The module will be taught in seminar format, using reflexive discussion of student research proposals

Dr Niamh NicGabhann, Dr Karol Mullaney-Dignam, Dr Leanne Calvert, Dr Aaron Donaghy.

HI6222 Directed reading in history

This module takes the form of a directed reading project. It is designed to facilitate the development of skills of historical analysis through the concentrated study of a specific topic that aligns with the research expertise of faculty. It serves as a structured means through which students develop the historical knowledge needed to pursue extended research and writing projects, particularly the dissertation. Each student is guided in their directed reading project by their dissertation supervisor.

Dr Aaron Donaghy

HI6041 Introduction to the history of family

Defining the concepts; approaches to the study of the history of family; disciplinary, multidisciplinary, interdisciplinary; contrasting interests and methodologies; recent developments in historical and social science scholarship about the family and underlying concepts such as 'Industrial revolution', 'urbanisation', 'modernisation', 'migration'; balancing larger conclusions and general themes with specific detailed studies; the structure, functioning and relationships of family life; linking individual studies of particular families to general contexts.

Dr Leanne Calvert

HI6191 Graduate seminar in Irish cultural history

Concepts of cultural history and the development of Irish society, 1922-2002; ideas, images and symbols provided Irish society in the creation of national identity, national aspirations and ambitions after 1960; cultural theories: popular/low versus elite/high culture, masculine versus feminine, public versus private; class, religion, gender, urban/rural, modernisation, language.

Dr Niamh NicGabhann-Coleman

HI6061 Linking families to communities

Ideas and debates on education and work; attitudes towards education; what education was available to families? an overview of occupational change; key issues in the history of work; the importance of regional variations; continuity and vitality of small-scale production; experiences of work; case studies and individual examples; links between occupation, social position and social mobility; identifying national trends and locating family histories therein; social mobility, family and gender; politics in the family – case studies of political families; the role of spiritual beliefs, religious practices in the lives of individuals and families; defining leisure; changes in popular culture and consequences for the family.

Dr Leanne Calvert

HI6062 People on the move: studying migration

Key ideas and concepts, sources, theories and explanations of migration by individuals and families; quantifying emigration; estimating net migration balances and net migration rates for a given area; standardized statistics in migration studies; mapping migration flows; mechanisms of movement from rural to urban; regional patterns of movement; emigration and immigration; the impact of migration on sending communities.

Dr Sara Hannafin

HI6792 Public history internship

The purpose of this module is to provide advanced history students with experience of public history, by applying research and interpretive skills in the workplace.

Dr Karol Mullaney-Dignam

HI6121 Art and power in the age of the Tudors and Stuarts

The accession of Elizabeth I 1558; Puritan responses to the Anglican church settlement; gender and family at the Elizabethan Court; the Union of the Crowns; Cecil, Carr and Buckingham - the minister favourite in Jacobean government; royal marriage policy under the Stuarts; Van Dyke, Inigo Jones and the public face of the Monarchy; art collecting by the English and Scottish aristocracy; the Laudian reform movement; Parliament, Civil War and the Commonwealth sale, 1649; Quakers, Baptists and Fifth Monarchy Men; the Cromwellian Protectorate and Stuart Restoration; the Cavalier Parliament and the persecution of dissenters; mistresses and bastards at the court of Charles II; Wren, Hawksmoor and the reconstruction of London after the Great Fire; the Glorious Revolution of 1688 and its repercussions in Scotland and Ireland; John Locke and the origins of constitutional government; foreign war and the rage of faction in the reign of Queen Anne.

Dr Alistair Malcolm

HI6201 Introduction to public history

Definition and origins; contemporary issues and debates; role of academia in the community. historic sites and monuments, historic houses, memorialisation, commemoration, exhibits, historic preservation, heritage, and community; ethical issues around the presentation and consumption of history in the public sphere; conduct of public history; media, digitisation and technology.

Dr Karol Mullaney-Dignam

HI6302 The 'Long War' in Ireland, 1968-98

Development of the Republican Movement in Ireland and abroad; civil rights agitation in context; constitutional opportunities and challenges; counterinsurgency; Ireland and the Cold War and related matters. Irish, British and North American primary sources; internment without trial, 'Bloody Sunday': Widgery and Saville reports, Sunningdale Agreement, 'Ulsterisation', Hunger strikes, 'The American Connection', abstentionism and the rise of Sinn Fein, 'Armed Struggle', Collusion, Section 31 and the 'Broadcast Ban', Peace Processes and the Good Friday Agreement; the roles of the Irish, British and American governments and the European Court of Human Rights.

Dr Ruan O'Donnell

HI6212 The evolution of the Irish town, 1609-1960

Definitions: town, village, settlement, suburb and countryside; space and topography; the evolution of the Irish town to 1607: markets, religion and defence; colonisation; economic factors; social attitudes and suburbia; 'improvement' and eighteenth-century concepts of towns and cities; the emergence of the modern state and the expanding functions of towns and cities; industrialisation; mentality and the culture of the town and city; public and private space; ownership: elites, middle class and the property-less.

Dr David Fleming

HI6171 Digital public history: culture and communication

This module introduces students to theories and practices for using digital tools, networks, and media in public history. Students study the ways that History is deployed in the digital age, experiment with digital media, and reflect on and discuss their insights. The module does not require specialised technical skills; the focus will be on digital culture and communication in public history. Topics may include: online content creation and curation; social media strategies, information design; inclusion and accessibility; crowdsourcing and citizen scholarship.

Dr Karol Mullaney-Dignam

GY5103 Reading the landscape: sources and methods in historical research

Landscape as both a historical record and a result of historical process; application of advanced research in historical geography to the study of local, regional and national developments; the significance of place names; the human environment; the interpretation of cultural markers; signs symbols and landscape as clue to culture; the social and cultural significance of historical geography; writing a landscape into existence.

Dr Helene Bradley

GA5104 The excluded voice? Methods and cases in oral history and beáloideas

Folktale and legend; their relationship to oral history; parallels and problem of history and folklore; the meaning of folklore and oral history texts; presentation and editing; principal archival collections for oral history and beáloideas including the Irish Folklore Commission Collection; memory; folklore and oral histories of families, childhood, work and social organisation.

Dr Tomas Mac Conmara

CENTRE FOR EARLY MODERN STUDIES, LIMERICK

The Centre for Early Modern Studies brings together scholars from across the disciplines in the University of Limerick and Mary Immaculate College (MIC) to stimulate engagement and enhance the environment for intellectual exchange between its members. The Centre serves as a platform to support individual funding applications as well as competing for grants in its own right. The Centre runs a programme of research seminars, lectures, and workshops. These provide a setting for debate and discussion of research in progress as well as opportunities for specialist training for undergraduate and postgraduate students. The Centre also seeks to maximise engagement by faculty and students with the Bolton Collection of early printed books and other institutional collections.

Website: <https://emslimerick.wordpress.com/> email: earlymodernstudies@ul.ie

Members

Director: Dr Alistair Malcolm (History, UL)

Mr Ken Bergin (Glucksman Library, UL)

Dr Leanne Calvert (History, UL)

Dr Liam Chambers (History, MIC)

Dr Aengus Finnegan (Irish, UL)

Dr David Fleming (History, UL)

Dr Eleanor Giraud (IWAMD, UL)

Prof. Pierce Grace (GEMS, UL)

Dr Carrie Griffin (English, UL)

Prof. Michael J. Griffin (English, UL)

Dr Richard Kirwan (History, UL)

Dr Clodagh Tait (History, MIC)

Dr Christina Morin (English, UL)

Dr Breandán Ó Cróinín (Irish, MIC)

Dr Ruán O'Donnell (History, UL)

Prof Philip O'Regan (Kemmy Business School, UL)

Dr Gordon Ó Riain (Irish, UL)

Dr Catherine Porter (Geography, UL)

Dr Darach Sanfey (French, MIC)

Professor Geraldine Sheridan (Emeritus Professor in French, UL)

Centre for
Early Modern Studies
Limerick

UNIVERSITY OF LIMERICK AND MARY IMMACULATE COLLEGE HISTORY RESEARCH SEMINAR SERIES

The seminar series (posted on the School website at the start of each semester) provides a focal point for each postgraduate student in the School, particularly those engaged in full-time research leading to the doctoral degree. For the academic year 2024-5, seminars are organised by the University of Limerick. For further information contact Aaron.Donaghy@ul.ie

Autumn Semester

3 October 2024

Dr Ruan O'Donnell (University of Limerick)

'The public and secret campaigns of Saor Uladh (Free Ulster), 1951-1960.'

5.15 pm, Kate O'Brien Room, UL

9 October 2024

* Prof. Brendan Dooley (UCC)

'Renaissance News between astonishment and doubt.'

5 pm, Kate O'Brien Room, UL

23 October 2024

Dr Colin Donnelly (Virginia Theological Seminary)

'Shifting conceptions of the afterlife in 17th century England: the case of Hester Pulter.'

Online via MS Teams

7 November 2024

Dr Jay Roszman (UCC)

'Irish "Outrages" and British Politics: Irish Agrarian Violence and its Multiplicity of Meanings.'

5.15 pm, Kate O'Brien Room, UL

14 November 2024

Dr Ciaran O'Neill and Dr Patrick Walsh (TCD)

'Trinity's Colonial Legacies: Instrumentality and Agency in a Public History Project.'

5.15 pm, Kate O'Brien Room, UL

19 November 2024

*Bolton-King Lecture

Dr Máire Kennedy (Centre for Early Modern History, TCD)

'Women in the eighteenth-century Munster book trade.'

6 pm, in the Captain's Room, Hunt Museum, Limerick City Centre

 Co-hosted with the Centre for Early Modern Studies, Limerick (CEMS)*

Schedule may be subject to change; seminars will be advertised on the school website and social media closer to each date. For online seminars, registration in advance is essential.

STUDENT-SUPERVISOR RELATIONS

The dissertation supervisor's role is to provide advice in relation to source material relevant to a chosen topic; to provide guidance regarding the best methodology to be applied to a study and to provide the student with constructive criticism and practical advice with respect to the written presentation of research results.

The student is responsible for establishing initial contact with the assigned supervisor and for maintaining regular contact thereafter. The student and supervisor should agree a mutually suitable schedule for the submission of draft chapters at regular intervals. The student should also note the importance of ensuring that the supervisor should see the final draft of a dissertation prior to its submission.

Each student is strongly urged to adhere to this schedule and to alert the supervisor to any changes to that schedule or difficulties encountered. It should not be presumed that the supervisor will be available after the date specified in order to review work.

ATTENDANCE AND FIELD VISITS

Education is a co-operative activity, which depends on the wholehearted participation of teacher and learners. The success of seminar and tutorial discussion depends on sustained attendance and participation. Attendance is a requirement for the satisfactory completion of each module. Students may be required to attend field trips that may involve a day or weekend at a site of historic, archaeological or geographical interest. Notification of the date and destination of such trips will be given well in advance.

FACULTY PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

History faculty participate actively as members of local, national and international historical organisations. These include the Irish Association for Australian Studies, the Irish Historical Society, the Irish Labour History Society, the Eighteenth-Century Ireland Society, the Society for the Study of Nineteenth-Century Ireland, the Irish Association for European Studies, the Group for the Study of Irish Historic Settlement, the Irish Georgian Society, the Irish Economic and Social History Society, the German History Society, Der Verein für Reformationsgeschichte and the Renaissance Society of America.

Dr Ruán O'Donnell is Records Custodian and Former Secretary of the Irish Centre for Australian Studies. Dr David Fleming is secretary of the Eighteenth-Century Ireland Society, treasurer of the Group for the Study of Irish Historic Settlement and a former chairman of the Irish Georgian Foundation. Dr Richard Kirwan is a member of the Royal Irish Academy's Historical Studies Committee. Dr Karol Mullaney-Dignam is a member of the international Sound Heritage network and leads the Irish Research Council-funded Sound Heritage Ireland project. She has previously worked on public history research and heritage interpretation projects with the Office of Public Works.

STUDENT REPRESENTATION AND VIEWS

Direct Student Feedback

In order to ensure that students can make a direct impact on the ways in which they are being taught, a lecturer or tutor may ask students to complete a questionnaire at the end of each module. Alternatively, your views on a module or a lecturer may be ascertained by way of a survey administered by the Centre for Transformative Learning.

Very occasionally, students may feel that a module tutor is unresponsive to their articulated concerns. If this happens there are a number of steps that can be taken. You can talk to your lecturer about the problem, and ask him or her to intervene either with the tutor concerned or with the Head of School. Alternatively, you can ask one of the class representatives to take the issue up privately with the staff member responsible.

Most problems can be sorted out by discussing them directly with the tutor concerned. If this does not work you should not hesitate to take the problem to a third party in one of the ways outlined above. It is in the interests of everyone involved that any such problems are known and dealt with as soon as possible. Making use of these procedures, when appropriate, is both your right and your duty.

Students' Forum and Postgraduate Courses Board

Students on each of the MA programmes elect a class representative at the start of the academic year. Representatives work closely with the Postgraduate Students' Association to enhance the quality of postgraduate student life. The representative also acts on behalf of the class in dealings with the course director and the Head of School. Class representatives are part of two formally constituted committees of the school: the School's Postgraduate Students' Forum and the Postgraduate Courses Board.

The school Postgraduate Students' Forum consists of one student representative from each MA programme (currently four) along with the Head of School. Its goal is to provide a forum in which issues can be raised and feedback offered to the Head of School. The Forum meets at least once each semester.

The MA student representatives select one of their number to sit on the Postgraduate Courses Board. The Board meets twice each semester to advise and develop appropriate methods of course delivery; review and develop modules at postgraduate level; provide assistance in the development of the various postgraduate programmes; comment on and advise the Head of School on strategic and long-term issues including the development of new programmes; and organise the School Postgraduate Students' forum.

HISTORY SOCIETY

Founded in 1997, the University of Limerick History Society took a brief hiatus in 2020, before being re-established in 2022. It aims to provide a wide range of activities for its members. Such activities have included a diverse array of seminars from UL lecturers, as well as other speakers. On top of that, there have been field trips, collaborations with other societies, themed events and more!

The History Society is a friendly, inclusive and fun student organisation. It's open to all students interested in history and not just those taking history modules.

For more information, follow UL History Society on social media:

Instagram: @ulhistorysoc

Twitter: @ULHistorySoc

HISTORY STUDIES

History studies is a peer-reviewed publication of postgraduate students at the University of Limerick. First published by the University's History Society in 1999, it continues to be published on an annual basis, and is the only student-managed and published journal in Ireland.

For more information on the journal as well as submission details see:

<https://www.ul.ie/artsoc/history/history-studies>

Editors: Rachel Beck and Lisa McGeeney.

IRISH HISTORY STUDENTS' ASSOCIATION

The Irish History Students' Association (IHSA) was established in 1950 to provide a means for history students to meet and present their research in a friendly and social environment. Its committee has members from each of Ireland's history societies, who are responsible for organising an annual conference. Staff and students from the School have a long and distinguished engagement with the IHSA. Students and especially postgraduates are encouraged to present papers at the conference, details of which will be posted. The Association's annual conference was held in UL in Spring 2015 and in MIC in Spring 2019. For more details contact the History Society or visit their website at <https://ccsihsa.jimdo.com/>.

RESOURCES

Glucksman University Library

The Library is one of the most important resources you will use as a postgraduate. Library staff will always react constructively to your questions. Never be afraid to ask them for help if you are unsure how to find the book or periodical that you need.

The Humanities librarian is Pattie Punch (phone: 061-202185, e-mail pattie.punch@ul.ie)
The Library website: <http://www.ul.ie/~library/>

Advanced Library Use

As your programme progresses, you will be expected to develop skills in finding and handling information more independently and critically than before. Good information-finding skills will enable you to easily locate alternative sources than those on your reading lists.

As the first stage in finding materials beyond your reading lists, try the 'keyword' search facility on the UL online library catalogue.

For periodicals, you should use the library catalogue to identify journals in the stacks and JSTOR and Swetswise, which are electronic-journal resources that contain many of the best history journals. These resources will allow you to carry out searches for the authors and subjects that interest you, as well as print the articles you require. An online bibliography of Irish periodicals and articles can be found at www.irishhistoryonline.ie

Essential electronic databases that are available from the Library can be found on the Library Homepage. They include:

- Arts and Humanities Citation index
- British Humanities Index
- Early English Books Online
- Eighteenth-Century Collections Online
- Irish Newspaper Archive
- Irish Times Historic Database
- Index to Theses of Great Britain and Ireland
- Irish History Online
- HCPP House of Commons Parliamentary Papers

Special Collections and Archives

The Special Collections and Archives department contains the University's rare books and manuscripts. The Collections' holdings include over 20,000 volumes and maps; several manuscript collections; postcard collections numbering some 12,000 items; prints and engravings. The Library also contains the Leonard, and Norton Collections, and the Bolton Library of rare books from the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

The Special Collections librarian is Mr Ken Bergin (phone 061-213158, e-mail: ken.bergin@ul.ie).

School website and social media

The School of History and Geography website contains a good deal of relevant information, including staff office hours and details of staff publications, module outlines and other teaching materials. Stay in touch with the School via its Facebook page. You might Like it! Or, follow @HistoryUL to keep posted on all events, news etc. happening within the School.

COURSEWORK ASSESSMENT, MARKS AND STANDARDS

Letter grades, cumulative average and degree award equivalents

Grade	Q.P.V.	Degree award	Descriptor
A1	4.0	1	Exceptional
A2	3.6	1	Excellent but not exceptional
B1	3.2	2.1	Excellent knowledge and analysis of sources
B2	3.0	2.1	Good knowledge and analysis of sources
B3	2.8	2.2	Good knowledge but limited analysis
C1	2.6	2.2	Knowledgeable, but generally un-analytical
C2	2.4	3	Reasonably knowledgeable
C3	2.0	3	Limited knowledge; no analysis
D1	1.6	Compensating fail	Without most of the above
D2	1.2	Compensating fail	Without any of the above
F	0.0	Non-compensating fail	Severely incomplete or plagiarised

Each student is obliged to complete and attain a pass in the coursework of each module and in the dissertation in order to qualify for the degree award. Students are required to observe the stipulated word limits. Only in exceptional circumstances may a student be given permission by the lecturer or the supervisor to apply to the course director to vary the stipulated length. Disregard of work limits, presentation specifications and inadequate presentation will incur a deduction of marks that may impact on a grade and category of degree award.

Coursework assessment criteria

Lectures introduce the principal concepts and arguments that historians and other scholars put forward concerning local communities in the past. They also direct students to relevant primary and secondary sources. A satisfactory student response will show clear evidence of independent study and interpretation of sources presented in a coherently argued narrative.

Honours

To attain first class honours (A1, A2), the student will have constructed a sound argument, made a convincing case, or resolved a problem by the reconstruction of knowledge as against the reproduction of knowledge. To do so will entail the application, synthesis and valuation of knowledge obtained from independent study of sources referred to in lectures, in bibliographies and other finding-aids. A question will be addressed in its entirety and all of the material used will be relevant to the question. The answer will have a deliberately fashioned structure which itself will be a direct response to the structure of the question. The language used will be precise and clear; the text will adhere fully to the appropriate conventions. A student answering at the higher level of first class honours (A1) may, in addition to the above, present evidence of an ability to relate the answer to other components of the degree course or of having integrated relevant material independently uncovered. An answer below the first class honours standard (B1, B2, B3, C1) will display the characteristics required for that standard but not as comprehensively or as effectively. Such answers will display less ability to present a coherent argument, less ability to synthesise material and in some instances, might also overlook minor elements in the assignment.

Third Class Honours

In contrast with work of first or second class honours standard, a third class answer (C2, C3) will display a clear tendency to recall relevant evidence in order to structure the task, rather than to support an argument. Consequently it may indicate that appropriate material was read but that its full significance was not grasped. The format of references is complete and the conventions for presentation are adhered to. In addition to the above characteristics, an assignment at the minimum level (C3) may indicate that a minor element in the task was overlooked or that the language was imprecise and unclear.

Fail

A student who falls short of performing at third class level will have failed.

Assessment criteria for M.A. dissertations

Honours

To attain first class honours (A1 or A2); a dissertation will make a convincing case, or resolve a problem by the reconstruction of knowledge as against the reproduction of knowledge. It will present the application, synthesis and evaluation of knowledge obtained from independent research in a wide variety of appropriate sources, both primary and secondary. A central research question, indicated by the dissertation title, will be addressed in its entirety and all of the source material cited will be relevant. The structure of the dissertation will develop in a logical sequence (either thematically or chronologically) from the central question, or issue, as expressed in the title and introductory chapter. The student must form and then refine the research question (through reviewing what other writers have written about this or similar issues) in the introductory chapter. If the student fails to formulate the question fully then, inevitably the dissertation will be rambling and incoherent. Language, precise and clear, will reflect the writer's skill without significant intervention by the supervisor. A student performing at the higher level of first class honours (A1) may, in addition, provide evidence of having taken the research in a valid direction independent of any specific input on that point by the supervisor. A dissertation below the first class honours standard (B1, B2, B3, C1) will display the characteristics required for that standard, but not as comprehensively or as effectively. Such dissertations will put forward a less coherent argument, show less ability to synthesise material and in some instances, may also overlook minor elements implicit in the title.

Third class honours

In contrast with first or second class honours, a third class dissertation (C2, C3) will show a tendency to use evidence to structure the text, rather than to support an argument. Consequently, it may indicate that relevant material was examined but that its significance may not have been grasped or fully elaborated upon. The exposition and development of the central theme will be unclear. This may be due to the use of repetitive phrases, awkward syntax, inappropriate comparisons, excessively elaborate language, or poor sentence structure. Lack of clarity in exposition might betray a lack of proper initial definition. A dissertation at the minimum level (C3) may indicate that more than a minor element in the research title was inadequately addressed.

Fail

A student who falls short of performing at third class level will be deemed to have failed (D1, D2, F).

Plagiarism

Plagiarism involves the taking of information or ideas from another author's work and failing to acknowledge those ideas in footnotes. Furthermore, the writing of history is a literary exercise whose purpose is to help develop your skills in prose composition. It is therefore also plagiarism to reproduce and present as your own work phrases or passages from another person's writing to which only random alterations have been made, and even if the source is acknowledged in footnotes.

Unacknowledged use of another historian's findings or ideas transgresses the ethics of scholarly work and will be heavily penalised. Copying of sentences or expressions — even if the source is acknowledged — indicates a failure to understand the requirements of academic writing. In either case, such instances will normally be referred to the University Disciplinary Committee. Where the Committee finds that a student has been guilty of plagiarism it can apply the penalty of suspension from the University for a substantial period.

Ethics

Where individuals participate in research (oral interviews, surveys, correspondence, etc.), students must obtain approval from the Faculty of Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences Research Ethics Committee. Students must not solicit participation or begin data collection until approval has been granted. See www.ul.ie/researchethics for further details.

Grades and recheck system

All grades are provisional until the external examiner has reviewed and Academic Council has approved them. Grades are issued by Academic Registry following adoption by the Academic Council. Results are made available online at www.si.ul.ie. A student who is dissatisfied with an award may request a grade recheck by completing a form obtainable from Academic Registry.

RUBRIC FOR PRESENTING COURSEWORK AND DISSERTATION

Language and general conventions

Coursework and dissertations may be presented in either the Irish or English language. The language in which work is presented will normally be the language of instruction or supervision and to do otherwise a student must first receive the approval of the appropriate Course Director.

All coursework and the dissertation must be presented following the conventions laid down in 'Rules for contributors' for Irish Historical Studies, a copy of which is available for consultation in the short loan collection in the University Library or through that journal's website (<http://www.irishhistoricalstudies.ie/>) and in accordance with the additional specifications and regulations in this booklet. Each coursework assignment and the dissertation should bear the prescribed title page (see appendix for examples). All coursework and the dissertation must include a bibliography of primary and secondary sources consulted.

Paper and print specifications

The dissertation must be submitted on A4 size white 80g/m² paper. Only one side of the paper should be used for printing text. A standard 10 pitch or 12 pitch typeface should be used. Text should be in one-and-a-half line spacing: a paragraph should not be separated from the one before by any additional space. The first line of a paragraph should be slightly indented except when it follows a chapter or sub-chapter heading. For footnotes and indented quotations, single spacing may be used. A slightly larger typeface, 13 or 14 pitch, should be used for the heading of subsections of chapters and either 15 or 16 pitch for chapter headings. One of the following typefaces (each name printed here in the respective type, both Roman and Italic) is preferred:

Courier	Courier
New Century School Book	New Century School Book
Bookman	Bookman
Times New Roman	Times New Roman
Garamond	Garamond

The chosen typeface should be used consistently throughout, for all of the text, including caption-headings, numerals, footnotes and page numbers.

Title page and preliminary items of dissertation

A favourable first impression is created by the careful and systematic presentation of a title page and preliminary items in the prescribed order:

Title page

Table of contents listing all subsequent elements in the work, providing correct page references, number and title of chapters and page numbers of appendices.

Brief acknowledgement of direct assistance received.

List of abbreviated forms

List of plates and/or list of maps.

Note that with the exception of the title page, these preliminary pages are normally paginated in lower-case Roman numerals (i, ii, iii, etc.). The first page of the text should be numbered 1.

The title page of the dissertation should present the following information:

The full title including subtitle if applicable

The full name of the author as on birth certificate with, if desired, any earlier degrees. The author may use a married name if thus registered in the University.

The statement 'Dissertation completed under the supervision of [insert title and name of supervisor] in partial fulfilment of the requirements of the degree of M.A (History or Local History or Public History and Cultural History or History of Family) of the University of Limerick (month year)'

See appendix for an example.

Pagination and margins

Pages should be numbered consecutively throughout the text, including those pages incorporating photographs or diagrams that are included as whole pages. Appendices and the bibliography should also be paginated. Page numbers should be located centrally at the bottom of the page, approximately 20 mm above the edge of the page. Margins at the binding edge should be no less than 40 mm, and the other margins no less than 20 mm.

Chapter headings, subheadings and page headings

The number and title of each chapter as it appears in the table of contents must be placed at the head of the first page of the respective chapters. Use 16 point. Running headings at the top of each page should not be used.

Use of italic, bold and underlined script

In general the use of these devices should be kept to a minimum. Italic script should be confined to the titles of publications and for foreign words and phrases. Avoid using either bold, underlining, or Italics to bring emphasis to any of the text including headings, captions or tables.

Appendices

These should include supplementary information such as tables of data or transcriptions that support your research and are referenced within the body of the dissertation, but which may break up the flow of the dissertation if placed within it. They should be numbered (either Roman or Arabic numerals) and may also be given a title. Note that not all dissertations will require appendices.

Abstract

An abstract written in the language of the dissertation, not exceeding 300 words, or one page in length, should be placed at the front of the dissertation and precede the title page.

Title page

Each dissertation should have a title page at the beginning with the following information:

- the title of the dissertation in at least 24 pt (8 mm) print
- the name of the student including one full forename, other forenames initialised and the surname
- the following declaration: Dissertation completed under the supervision of [insert name] in partial fulfilment of the requirements of the degree of Master of Arts [insert programme name], University of Limerick, [insert date]

See the appendix for an example.

Text Style for Coursework and Dissertation

Capital letters

The use of capital letters should be minimised and in general should be used as follows:

- To open a sentence
- To mark the first word in the title of a book or article
- To signify a proper name
- To indicate titles for periodicals (e.g. Irish Historical Studies)
- To allow initial letters to be used for abbreviations (e.g. I.H.S., D.N.B.)

Initial capitals should also be used for specific historical events or eras, for example, the Reformation, the Famine and the First World War.

[See section VII of Irish Historical Studies 'Rules for contributors']

Quotations

For a quotation that is shorter than three lines of normal text, use single quotation marks and type the text of the quote in regular font. Should the quotation exceed three lines or forty words, indent the text of the quotation on the left side and have it run to the end of the margin on the right side of the page. Such quotations should be in single space type without quotation marks and the footnote number should follow the full stop at the end of the quotation.

Figures

Numbers up to one hundred, when they occur in normal prose and are not statistical, should be written in words rather than numerals. When there are many figures, however, it is better to use words only for numbers up to nine. Avoid beginning a sentence with a numeral. Spell out 'per cent' rather than using the % symbol in the text.

Currency

Amounts in euro and cent should normally be indicated in the form €4.15. Amounts of less than one euro may be indicated either as 41c. Pounds, shillings and pence should be indicated in the form £5 2s. 6d. Note that the symbols for shillings and pence (but not for pounds) are italicised and followed by points.

Dates

These should be given as 2 September 1939; commas should not be used. Spell out centuries rather than using numerals; write 'the eighteenth century' not 'the 18th century'. Use hyphenation to indicate adjectival usage of centuries: 'In the eighteenth century, barbers commonly performed surgery, but unfortunately for patients not all eighteenth-century barbers were adept with knife and needle'.

In expressing periods of time or a succession of numbers use the fewest figures necessary to convey the meaning without obscurity.

For example:

Write:	Do not write
1396-7	1396-97
1700-1	1700-1701
1811-12	1811-2

Note also, that decades should be written as in the example below, and that there is no apostrophe before the 's':

'In the 1790s there was an increase in...'

Tables, figures, diagrams, maps

Each table, figure, diagram or map which is included in a dissertation should have a table/figure/diagram/map number and title above and a statement of the source of the table etc. or the data used to compile a diagram beneath the illustration. Where relevant a key should be provided and all axes in diagrams should be clearly labelled.

Footnotes

Footnotes are usually used for the following purposes:

To indicate the source of the information presented in the text especially all quoted material, facts that may be obtained from one source only and the views and arguments of another writer. It is not necessary to cite sources for proverbs or sources for information that is widely available or is common knowledge.

To refer the reader to other sources directly relevant to the subject under discussion

To refer the reader to a point or points made elsewhere in the entire text or to another footnote in the entire text.

To provide information that clarifies a point made in the text. This might include a translation of foreign words or phrases or the conversion of unfamiliar currencies.

To very briefly make a point which complements or qualifies the text and which, if included, would interfere with its continuity.

To provide the reader with the original version of the material which has been translated in the text.

To present briefly the opposing point of view on a subject which is a minor matter of controversy.

Footnote referencing conventions

Reference to a book of one edition

The following information should be included:

First name/initials (cite either the full first name or two initials but not R. Flower or Nicholas P. Canny)

Author's surname

The title of the book (in italics)

Place and date of publication, in parenthesis

Cite specific page numbers from which the relevant points have been drawn, but omit page numbers if the reader is referred to the work as a whole, as in this example:

Robin Flower, The Irish tradition (Oxford, 1947), p. 3.

Note that usually only one place of publication is cited even if two are given. If, for example, London and Bangor were cited as places of publication it would be usual to cite London alone as it is the more widely recognised centre for publication. Reference should be made to a city or town and not a country as the place of publication. If no place of publication is stated, insert n.p. Details of publishers are not included in footnote or bibliographical references under the Irish Historical Studies rules. Note that a reference to one page in a book follows the style p. 4 whereas when referring to two or more pages the style pp 6-9 without a full stop is used.

Reference to a book available in several editions

The same details are included in the first reference to such a book as in the example above but with two very important differences: it is necessary to specify both the particular edition consulted and the date of that edition, as in this example:

G.T. Stokes, Ireland and the Anglo-Norman church (3rd ed., London, 1892), p. 5.

Note that the inclusion of the details regarding the edition immediately precedes the place of publication within the parenthesis: the punctuation of the reference to the edition. If your word processor automatically converts to 3rd, change the rd (superscript) to regular font size (rd). It is essential that the edition and the date of the work consulted be cited since page numbers and content often change from edition to edition. Hence, it is important to alert the reader to the correct edition and date in order to ensure that cited page references are valid.

Reference to reprints and newly edited secondary works

As in the case of details regarding various editions of books consulted, all details regarding reprints, introductions, prefaces, and so on, should be included if relevant, as in this example:

J.T. Gilbert, A history of the city of Dublin (reprint, with intro. by F.E. Dixon, Shannon, 1972, of orig. ed., 3 vols, Dublin, 1854-9), i, p. 17.

Note that all details regarding reprint, introduction and so on predate the place and date of publication within parenthesis and that details of the original edition and its date are provided.

Reference to an edited book (collection of essays)

The format should be as in these examples:

¹ R. B. O'Brien (ed.), Studies in Irish history, 1649-75 (London, 1903).

² Art Cosgrove and Donal McCartney (eds.), Studies in Irish history presented to R. Dudley Edwards (Dublin, 1979).

Reference to an essay in an edited collection

In this case details of the essay are cited first and then details of the book in which it has been published are listed, as in this example:

Ciaran Brady, 'Conservative subversives: the community of the Pale and the Dublin administration, 1556-86' in P.J. Corish (ed.), Radicals, rebels and establishments (Belfast, 1975), pp 11-32.

Note that pp 11-32 refers to the first and last pages of the article. This reference therefore directs the reader to consult the entire article. However, should an author wish to direct the reader to merely one or two pages in the article, these page references would be replaced with specific page references for example, p. 5 or pp 9-10. The full title of Brady's article is in single inverted commas. All references to essays or articles, either in book or journals, should be presented in this manner. When using a library catalogue to search for an essay published in a book or periodical (journal, review), the essay may only be located by looking up the name of the editor of the book or the title of the book or periodical since on most catalogues, authors of articles are not listed.

Reference to an article in a periodical, journal or review

The most straightforward reference to an article published in a periodical should be constructed as in this example:

D. L. Potter, 'The treaty of Boulogne and European diplomacy, 1549-50' in Bull. Inst. Hist. Research, lv (1982), pp 50-65.

Note the use of an abbreviated title for the periodical in which the article is published (Bull. Inst. Hist. Research = Bulletin of the Institute of Historical Research). There are two lists of abbreviated titles with which all history students should be familiar:

List of bibliographical abbreviations and short titles published in Irish Historical Studies, xix, 76 (Sept. 1975)

List of abbreviations in the volumes of A new history of Ireland series

Reference to a review of a published work

A review of a published work should be constructed as in this example:

David Fitzpatrick, review of David Gerber, Authors of Their Lives: The Personal Correspondence of British Immigrants to North America in the Nineteenth Century in Journal of British Studies, 46, 2 (April 2007), pp 429-31.

First and subsequent citations

The first time a work is cited, it is necessary to cite its full title and details. For a second and subsequent references a shortened title should be used. The following work:

Alan Ford, The Protestant Reformation in Ireland, 1590-1641 (Dublin, 1997)

can be shortened to

Ford, The Protestant Reformation.

It is important that in the event of devising a shortened title, an author should ensure that it is not abbreviated to the point of giving rise to ambiguity. Neither should it duplicate an existing short title.

Citation of various journal series

Certain journals have been published in several separate series. In such cases an author is obliged to specify in which series the particular article may be found, as in this example:

M. V. Ronan, 'Religious customs of Dublin's medieval guilds' in Irish Ecclesiastical Record, 5th ser., xxvi (1925), p. 227.

Note that the format is basically the same as in the previous case except that immediately after the title of the periodical and before the volume number the series number has been inserted. It has to be located at this point since a reader will firstly consult the 5th series and within that series will consult the sixteenth volume.

Articles printed in more than one part

Certain articles span a number of volumes of a particular journal and should be given in a single footnote, as in this example:

John Kingston, 'The catholic families of the Pale' in Reportorium Novum, i, nos 1-2 (Jan.-June 1955-6), pp 79-90; ii, nos 1-2 (Jan.-June 1957-60), pp 88-108, 236-56.

Note that this footnote refers to the article as a whole, providing all page numbers from beginning to end. However, if the intention is to direct the reader to one point which Kingston has made, only those details which are directly relevant should be included, as in this example:

John Kingston, 'The catholic families of the Pale' in Reportorium Novum, ii, nos 1-2 (Jan.-June 1957-60), p. 256.

Note that following the volume number (ii), there follows an entry nos 1-2. In the case of some periodicals, issue numbers such as these are printed at the front of the volume consulted. These should be included as part of the footnote reference as shown above. Certain periodicals are published in several issues annually. Again the months for which each particular issue has been published are indicated at the front of the periodical. These should also be included in footnote references as illustrated above.

Manuscript sources

References to manuscript material should be in Roman font only (no Italics). A full reference to a document should include the following information:

Its title or description (A)

Its date (B)

The repository in which it is stored (C)

The collection to which it belongs (D)

The volume of the collection and the page or folio where it may be located and other relevant details of its location (E) as in the following examples:

Cowley to Bellingham, 29 June 1549 (T.N.A., S.P. 61/1/49).

(A) (B) (C) (D) (E)

Thomas Russell's journal, 5 Apr. 1793 (N.A.I., Rebellion papers, 620/20/33).

(A) (B) (C) (D) (E)

Note that only the initials of the repository are used. This would apply in the cases of national repositories (T.N.A. = The National Archives, London; N.L.I. = National Library of Ireland; N.A.I. = National Archives of Ireland; P.R.O.N.I. = Public Record Office of Northern Ireland; R.C.B. Library = Representative Church Body Library). In the case of less well-known archives, it is advisable to cite the full name of the repository. All of these details are necessary for a very practical reason. A manuscript, by definition, is a unique document. Only one of its kind exists in the world. It is therefore essential that a footnote reference be sufficiently clear as to enable a scholar from any part of the world to locate the particular manuscript.

In certain instances an author may have consulted manuscript material which is not stored in a public repository but which is, rather, in private possession. In this case it is not sufficient to cite the manuscript as 'MS in the possession of Peter Burke' since such a reference leaves the reader none the wiser as to the exact nature of the document. Instead, an author should aim to ensure that the reference will achieve the two aims of informing the reader of the nature of the manuscript and will make it possible for the reader to locate the sources. An appropriate reference would therefore be in this example:

Indenture between James Nugent and William Fitzsimons, 27 Mar. 1617 (MS in possession of John Murphy of Castlepark, Co. Donegal).

Citing manuscript and printed sources in combination

Sometimes an author has the opportunity to consult a primary source both in its original manuscript form and in its printed or calendared format. In this case an author may wish to refer the reader to both forms of the source in footnotes as in this example:

Philips to Coke, 1 Feb. 1632 (T.N.A., S.P. 63/253/7; Cal. S.P. Ire., 1625-32, p. 643).

Note that the locations of the document are both in parenthesis, divided by a semicolon; the manuscript reference is always cited first; the published work is cited in Italics. When citing a primary source which has been located in a secondary work (for example quotations from a newspaper in a local history book), a footnote should be constructed as in this example:

The Kildare Observer, 18 Jun. 1877, quoted in Con Costello, Kildare: saints, soldiers and horses (Naas, 1991), p. 42.

By thus constructing a footnote an author avoids the pretence that the primary source has been consulted. This is preferable to pretending that the original source was consulted since this footnote reference shows that the student is reliant upon Costello's accurate transcription and reproduction of the quotation.

Internet sources

Since internet sources can be modified without notice, both the url and date accessed should be included. Where a digital object identifier exists, this should be referenced rather than the url. The website should be referenced as follows: title and date of source, website owner, name of source (url or doi) (date accessed), for example:

William Denby, Ballymore Demesne, Wexford, Form A, N.A.I., 'Census of Ireland, 1911' (<http://www.census.nationalarchives.ie/reels/nai003560691/>) (20 Nov. 2017)

Ulster Historical Foundation, 'Distribution of surnames in Ireland in 1890' (<http://www.ancestryireland.com/family-records/distribution-of-surnames-in-ireland-1890-mathesons-special-report/>) (2 Jan. 2003).

Book and articles published electronically

If an item is available in more than one format, cite the version you consulted. For items consulted online, list a Digital Object Identifier (DOI) or URL and include an access date. If no fixed page numbers are available, you can include a section title or a chapter or other number.

Calendared or printed primary material

References to page numbers in calendars are insufficient. It is preferable to provide particulars of the documents cited as in this example:

Chichester to Salisbury, 18 July 1609 (Cal. S.P. Ire., 1606-10, p. 253).

In the case of primary sources that have been edited and printed the footnote should be constructed as in the following example:

Extents of Irish monastic possessions, 1540-1541, from manuscripts in the public Record Office, London, ed. N.B. White (Dublin, 1943), p. 45.

Note that the title (the primary source) is listed first, rather than the name of the editor. This is the case since the editor has not written the volume and it is the printed version of the source that is of paramount importance, rather than the identity of the editor.

Citing parliamentary papers

There is a set formula for constructing footnote references to British parliamentary papers and these are set out in the 'Rules for contributors', section II, 15. See also Hugh Shearman, 'The Citation of British and Irish Parliamentary Papers of the Nineteenth and Twentieth Centuries' in Irish Historical Studies, Vol. 4, No. 13 (Mar., 1944), pp 33-37.

Sessional papers

Citations should include (1) the title of the paper, (2) the page in the paper to which reference is desired, (3) the house (H.C. or H.L.), (4) the sessional year, (5) the sessional number in round brackets, (6) the volume number in lower-case roman numerals, (7) the manuscript pagination of the reference in the volume.

If the paper is common to both houses, there will be alternatives for (3), (5), (6) and (7).

Where it is possible to choose between giving a reference to commons papers and one to lords papers, it is better to give the reference to commons papers, since bound sets of these are much more usually available in libraries than sets of lords papers.

Report of the comptroller and auditor general on the account of the commissioners of church temporalities in Ireland for the year ended 31 December 1874, together with the account for the above period and that from 26 July 1869 (the commencement of the commission) to 31 December 1874, p. 3, H.C. 1875, (252), xx, 135.

Command papers subsequent to 1833

Citations should include (1) the title of the paper, (2) the page in the paper to which reference is desired, (3) the command number in square brackets, (4) the house, (5) the session, (6) the volume number, (7) the manuscript pagination.

If the paper is common to both houses, as was usually the case with command papers in the nineteenth century, there will be alternatives for (4), (6) and (7).

Report of the commissioners of church temporalities in Ireland for the year 1875, p. 3, [C. 1400], H.L. 1876, xx, 53.

Post 1922 Irish official papers

Citations should include give (1) the title of the paper, (2) the page reference, (3) indication of the government by which it was published, (4) indication of the ministry or department from which the paper emanated, if this is not clear from the title, (5) the year of publication, (6) the paper number, with any indication as to house, command, etc. which may accompany it.

Census Reports

See Parliamentary Papers above. The following is an example:

Census of Ireland, 1901, pt 1, p. 60, H.C., 1902 (68), cxxii, 29.

Census of Ireland, 1891: province of Leinster, p. 73, H.C., 1890-91 (48), xcv, 184.

Newspapers

The titles of newspapers should always be written in italics, whether in the body of the text or in a footnote. Newspapers should be cited as in the example below (note that there is no need to include the page number):
Irish Times, 6 Oct. 1868.

Films, documentaries and newsreels

Films should be cited as in this example:

Ken Loach (director), Jimmy's Hall (2014)

If a documentary series is available as a broadcast then it should be cited as in this example:

R.T.É., 'Episode of documentary', Name of documentary series (date broadcast)

Documentaries or newsreels that are accessed online should be cited as in this example:

British Pathé, 'title of newsreel' (year broadcast) (add in url here) (add date accessed here)

Combining several references in one footnote

Often an author cites more than one reference in a footnote. In this instance the entire footnote should read like a sentence, with no full stop included until the end of that sentence. Individual references should be separated by semicolons as in this example:

'Accounts of sums realised by sale of chattels of some suppressed Irish monasteries' ed. Charles McNeill in R.S.A.I.Jn., lii (1922), pp 11-12; Brendan Bradshaw, The dissolution of the religious orders in Ireland under Henry VIII (Cambridge, 1974), p. 60.

Latinisms

Many books and articles contain Latin terms in footnotes. In general, it is preferable to use short or abbreviated titles rather than Latinisms, which, if used incorrectly, can lead to a great deal of confusion on the part of the reader. The use of ibidem and idem is allowed (see below). Avoid use of other Latinisms in footnotes as they often give rise to confusion.

Use of Ibidem (Ibid)

Ibid. is used when citing an author's work in two consecutive footnotes. This should be done only when there is one reference in the first footnote, as in this example:

¹ John Bossy, The English Catholic community, 1578-1850 (London, 1975), p. 6.
² Ibid.

This means that footnote 2 alludes to exactly the same reference as footnote 1. Alternatively the intention might be to refer the reader to a different page in the same work in which case footnote 2 will read:

³ Ibid., p. 8.

If there are several works in the second consecutive footnote insert the reference to the work that was cited in the previous footnote first and then follow it with the other references, as in this example:

¹ John Bossy, The English Catholic community, 1578-1850 (London, 1975), p. 6.
² Ibid., p. 7; Brendan Bradshaw, The dissolution of the religious orders in Ireland under Henry VIII (Cambridge, 1974), p. 9.

Use of Idem

Idem is used when citing two works consecutively, both of which are written by the one author as in this example:

Brendan Bradshaw, The dissolution of the religious orders in Ireland under Henry VIII (Cambridge, 1974), p. 5; idem, 'The Elizabethans and the Irish' in Studies, lxx (1977), pp 38-50.

Note that both ibid. and idem should be in Roman font, not Italics. Idem is not capitalised in the above example as it is inserted within a sentence. Unlike ibid., idem is not followed by a full stop.

Compiling a bibliography

A bibliography is designed to provide the reader with a comprehensive list of all the sources (both primary and secondary) consulted. All material referred to in footnotes must be included in the bibliography. A limited number of other works that may have assisted a student in researching or in reaching a better understanding of the subject may also be included. In general, however, these extra sources should be kept to a minimum.

There are several ways in which a bibliography may be laid out. However, the basic and fundamental division that must be observed in the compilation of all bibliographies is that of primary versus secondary sources. The first section of the main body of every bibliography must be a primary source section. That section should in turn be subdivided in at least two basic sections. Firstly, manuscript sources should be listed according to the repositories in which they are stored. The second part of the primary source section should comprise a list of calendared and printed primary source material.

The secondary sources section of a bibliography should be divided into two parts. The first, which will normally be the largest, should be devoted to printed books, articles in journals, essays in collections and so on. These should be listed in alphabetical order, by authors' surnames. There is no need to separate books from articles and so on. The second part of the secondary sources section lists unpublished works. These may include theses, conference papers, unpublished material or a book or article that is forthcoming. To summarise, the divisions are as follows:

- Primary sources
 - Manuscript sources
 - Printed and calendared material
- Secondary works
 - Published works
 - Unpublished works

Sample Bibliography:

PRIMARY SOURCES

MANUSCRIPTS

British Library, London

Fox papers (Add. Mss 47508, 47563)

Pelham papers (Add. Mss 33100-01)

National Archives of Ireland, Dublin

Chief Secretary's Office Registered Papers (CSORP)

National Library of Ireland, Dublin
Bolton papers (Mss 15800-980)
Civil establishment list, 1789 (Ms 4109)

Printed works

Legg, M.-L (ed.), The Synge letters: Bishop Edward Synge to his daughter Alicia, Roscommon to Dublin, 1746-1752 (Dublin, 1996)

Newspapers

Freeman's Journal

Irish Independent

Irish Times

SECONDARY SOURCES

Bailey, Peter, 'Parasexuality and glamour: the Victorian barmaid as cultural prototype' in Gender and History, 2 (1990), pp 1471-80.

Finney, Patrick, 'The romance of decline: the historiography of appeasement and British national identity' June 2000, Electronic Journal of International History (<http://www.history.ac.uk/ejournal/list.html>) (15 August 2006).

Gaunt, Sarah, 'Visual propaganda in the late middle ages' in B. Taithe and T. Thornton (eds.), Propaganda: political rhetoric and identity, 1300-2000 (Stroud, 1999) pp 27-40.

Hobsbawm, Eric, Age of extremes: the short twentieth century, 1914-1991 (London, 1994).

Illustrations

Reproductions of appropriate illustrations, whether in the form of a painting, drawing, photograph, plan or map, may be an integral part of a dissertation or thesis. These may be placed in the text itself, in an appendix at the end of the text, or in a separate volume if referenced in the text. Illustrations should be located alongside or close to the material to which the illustration refers. In cases where there are a substantial number of illustrations included in the main text, guidance on the appropriate placing of illustrations should be sought from the supervisor.

List of illustrations as part of table of contents

All illustrations used should be listed in the preliminary items of the dissertation or thesis. The list is included immediately before the 'list of abbreviations used', as set out in the Department's notes for dissertation presentation. Illustrations should be listed in the order in which they occur, whether in the text itself, in an appendix or in a separate volume. In cases where there are more than three illustrations in one or more chapters, the number of the illustration should indicate the chapter. For example, the number 4.5 would indicate that the relevant illustration is the fifth in chapter four. University regulations regarding paginations includes the following; 'Pages should be numbered consecutively throughout the text, including those pages incorporating photographs or diagrams which are included as whole pages.' The aim of each entry is to guide the reader to the relevant location. It is not a full description of the item as might be given with the individual illustrations in the text. The list should thus follow the form;

Number

Name of artist or author

Title of work

Page number in dissertation or thesis

Volume number if the dissertation or thesis extends to more than one volume

Examples:

2.12	Sean Keating, Night's Candles are Burnt Out	28
4.1	Distribution of hydro-electric power stations, Ireland, 1930-80	32

The captions for an individual illustration

Each illustration should be identifiable by a caption placed underneath or in the case of illustrations that cover a full page, placed on the preceding page. A caption should include the following information, with line spacing of 3pt as in the example below:

- Number, name of artist or author and dates of birth and death if known
- Title of work (italicised) and year of execution (not italicised)
- Brief description
- Medium and dimensions (in the case of a work of art) in millimetres (height, by width, by depth) or scale (in the case of a map, plan or elevation)
- Location of original work

Example:

- 26 William Robertson (1770-1850)
- Kilkenny Castle*, 1826
- Elevation of entrance front from The Parade
- Ink and watercolour, 275 x 440
- Irish Architectural Archive

Coloured illustrations

Reproduction of an item where the original is in colour presents particular problems: reproduction is often excessively costly and quality of colour is often variable. Consequently, black and white reproductions may be used except in instances where full elucidation depends on the availability of a colour illustration.

Colour should not be used in the case of diagrams and computer generated charts.

Acknowledgements and copyright

Appropriate acknowledgment of the source of an illustration should be given in the case of any work reproduced in a dissertation. In the case of works owned by anyone other than the author, the candidate should ensure that any reproduction by them is in accordance with the current copyright laws.

Word count

The overall length of an M.A. or Ph.D. dissertation should not exceed that specified in the programme outline above. The word count limit applies to chapters only and excludes preliminaries, appendices, footnotes and bibliography. The dissertation's word count (all text excluding appendices) must be written on the cover sheet.

Submission of coursework and dissertation

Coursework should be submitted directly to the module lecturer or supervisor.

Please refer to the module outline for further information.

A student is required to submit dissertations online by the date specified.

The University cannot accept responsibility for a lost or undelivered assignment. Neither coursework nor dissertation may be accepted after the submission date except in the case of certified illness or in the case of family bereavement. All coursework and submitted copies of the dissertation will be retained for inspection by University examiners and will not be returned: students are therefore advised to retain copies for their own personal use and if necessary should retain original photographs and other source material.

Previous research, publication and copyright

A student may include in a dissertation any material arising from research conducted as part of the programme (which may have been independently published prior to submission), making sure that it is fully and clearly referenced. Work published or submitted for publication prior to the start of the programme may be included in the dissertation, provided that it is clearly acknowledged. A candidate must not submit material that has or is being submitted for a degree in another university. Course Boards encourage the publication of research material but require that in the case of material not yet examined that a student should first seek formal approval for publication from the relevant Course Director.

Material submitted for publication following its acceptance by examiners should fully acknowledge the role of the University of Limerick in promoting and sponsoring the research from which the publication derives. Copyright in the dissertation rests with the student and then the graduate.

DISSERTATION RETENTION AND AVAILABILITY

PhD theses may be digitised and made available electronically through the University's Institutional Repository. An embargo limiting public access for a period not exceeding five years may be sought from the Doctoral College.

MA dissertations will be kept by the School of History and Geography and will be accessible to the public, normally via a digital repository. You may withdraw consent to this by writing to the Head of School at any time.

GUIDELINES FOR STRUCTURING THE M.A. DISSERTATION

Abstract

There is a University requirement to provide an abstract of no more than 300 words (or one page). The abstract should summarise the research question, the sources used, the evidence presented and the main findings.

Table of Contents

The table of contents should include the numbers and titles (if applicable) of each chapter within the dissertation, as well as any appendices, and include the corresponding page numbers. It may be followed by a list of tables, figures or illustrations, and a list of abbreviations.

Introductory Chapter

A review of what others have written on the issue, leading to a formulation of a research question that has not yet been dealt with by any other scholar in a satisfactory way. Include a brief survey of primary sources used, description of dissertation structure.

Subsequent Chapters

The body of the dissertation should present the results of a close examination of the primary and secondary sources assembled as relevant to the central research question. It should comprise a logical sequence of components directly relevant to the research question, either thematically or chronologically or a combination of these. The number of chapters will be determined by the principal thematic or chronological components. Avoid the temptation to include separate chapters on minor, tangential issues. By giving any such material a separate chapter will confer parity with material of much greater significance. In the case of relatively lengthy chapters, relevant sub-themes may be dealt with in specific sub-sections.

Concluding chapter

This should set out concisely the principal significant findings of the research. It should therefore avoid presenting new material, or repeating or summarising what has already been written in the body of the dissertation and summarised in the abstract. Instead it should focus sharply on the essence of the conclusions that may be drawn.

Appendices (if any)

These should include supplementary information such as tables of data or transcriptions that support your research and are referenced within the body of the dissertation, but which may break up the flow of the dissertation if placed within it. They should be numbered (either Roman or Arabic numerals) and may also be given a title.

Bibliography

The listing of all sources, both primary and secondary whether referred to directly or otherwise should be in accordance with the rubric set out by the Irish Committee of Historical Sciences. The length of bibliographies varies considerably depending on the topic and the nature and availability of sources. As a rough guide allow between 1,000 and 2,500 words, that is anything from two to five pages.

APPENDICES

Appendix I: Example of cover sheet for assignments

Student's name:	Mary Smith
ID number:	1683457
Course title:	M.A. (History)
Module code and title:	HI6001 Concepts, sources and methods in modern History
Lecturer:	Dr Tom Smyth
Title:	The new historicism and its critics
Date submitted:	31 August 2025
Word count:	2,500 words

Appendix II: Example of a dissertation title page

Church and society in Kildare 1400-1600

by

Patricia A. Murphy

Word Count: 19,927

Dissertation completed under the supervision of Dr M. Smyth
in partial fulfilment of the requirements of the degree of
Master of Arts (Local History)

University of Limerick, 31 August 2025

NOTICE.

County of the City of Waterford,

All Persons presenting Petitions for Freedom, either in Right of BIRTH, MARRIAGE, or APPRENTICESHIP, are required to conform to the terms of the annexed Bye Law, or Resolution of the Corporation of said City; Otherwise, the Prayer of their Petitions Respectively, will not be taken into Consideration.

By Order, &c.

R. & W. COOKE, Town Clerks.

17th of June, 1828.

COUNCIL CHAMBER,

(4th of May, 1824.)

RESOLVED. That on all Future occasions, Petitions for Freedom shall be lodged with the Town Clerk, to whom shall be paid the Sum of Two Shillings and Six Pence on each Petition, for Entering the same Alphabetically in a Book which has been opened for that purpose, and in which Book the Town Clerk shall be required to keep a Registry of all Claims, classed under the several heads of Birth, Marriage, & Apprenticeship; wherein also shall be recorded the decision of Council in such Cases, whether Admitted or Rejected, by which means much unnecessary trouble will be saved the Parties desirous of obtaining their Freedom of Right, and the investigation of their Claims much facilitated.

WEIGHT, PRINTER.